COMPLETED COMMISSION WORK:

"Tennessee Twilight"

This is a painting of a landscape for a client who grew up in Tennessee but now resides in Texas. In their new home, they're placing my artwork in a spot where they can see it every day.

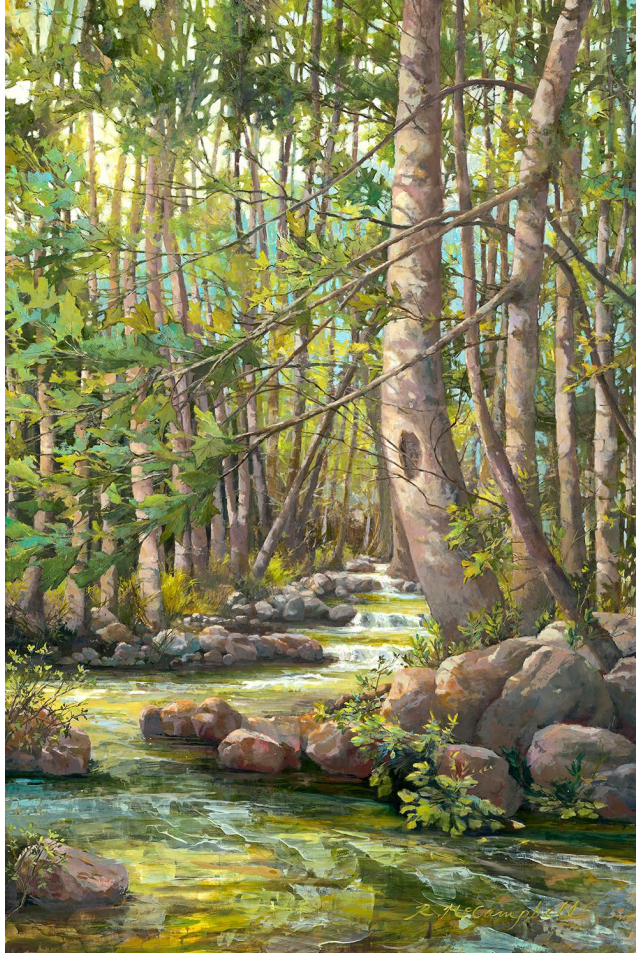

The challenge for me was getting the lighting correct as they wanted me to capture the last light of the day - that moment just before the day's light disappears entirely. There's so much power and magic in those few minutes when the sun is slowly closing its door on the day--giving us time to rest and quiet in gratitude. I think I did it!

"Little Pigeon River Reverie"

For this commission, my client wanted me to bring their backyard view inside so I painted this beautiful scene of their property. I love painting in the Smoky Mountains so this was a great joy for me to not only get to paint my beloved Smokies, but to also paint in such a large format! This piece is 4' w by 6' h and will hang above the client's fireplace at their river cabin. I created a short video (see below) showing a bit of my painting process. I hope you enjoy it.

When doing commissioned pieces, I take in the client's ideas and visions for the work as well as the environment where the art will hang. I consider the lighting, the interior design and color scheme of the home. I hope, in both these cases, that I've met all their needs and that my artwork will beautify their already lovely surroundings. I can't wait to see them one day in situ!
